Cyber Security Responders in the National Cyber Security Centre

The National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC) is an operational arm of the Department of Justice, Home Affairs and Migration, and is currently comprised of 3 Directorates: Technology, Operations and Resilience/Compliance.

The NCSC is responsible for leading in the management of major cyber security incidents across Government. It is also tasked with providing guidance and advice to citizens and businesses on major cyber security incidents and developing strong international relationships in the global cyber security community for the purposes of information sharing.

The NCSC now wishes to fill key Cyber Security Responders vacancies in:

- Technology
- Operations
- Resilience/Compliance

Reporting to a Cyber Security Specialist, successful candidates will be part of a technologically complex and rapidly growing organisation with dynamic and agile teams utilising established processes and services while innovating and exploring new technologies.
